

Legal Do's and Don'ts

Various governing bodies that prohibit employment discrimination have established laws. Laws are not intended to prohibit employers from obtaining job-related information from candidates, but rather to give all candidates equal opportunity. It is the policy of The Ohio State University to employ the best-qualified individuals without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age national origin, sexual orientation, citizenship or disability. Two key thoughts to keep in mind during the interview process: (1) is this information directly related to the job; (2) am I asking the same or similar questions of every candidate. It is important to use the job relevance and consistency “test” not only during the interview itself, but also during casual conversations with the candidate(s), in written notes, and when rating candidates and making selection decisions.
